—President Roosevelt would make no comment when the telegram was handed him informing him of Judge Landis' Standard Oil decision. It even paralyzed the man with the big stick.

—Forty persons were drowned like rats in a trap when a passenger train jumped the track and plunged off a bridge into the river Loire in France. Not a person escaping from the submerged car, although the top was blown off by the compressed air when the car sank.

—The enormous profits of the Standard Oil Company form the basis of a long report by Herbert Knox Smith, Commissioner of Corporations, to President Roosevelt. The report gives the results of an elaborate investigation of prices and profits of the oil industry. Mr. Smith computes that in twenty-four years the Standard Oil Company has made $790,000,000 on an investment of $75,000,000. He charges that the company has resorted to unfair means of competition, and has used its powers to force prices up. He denies that the Standard has in any manner benefited the consumer, and asserts that under free competition the price would be much lower.

—Martin W. Littleton, former president of the borough of Brooklyn and a lawyer and orator of wide reputation, will be chief counsel for Harry K. Thaw when the wealthy young Pittsburger again faces a jury to answer to the charge of killing Stanford White. Thaw announced the selection of Mr. Littleton Saturday after a conference with his mother and his wife. It is said Mr. Littleton's fee will be $25,000.

—As chief counsel for Thaw, Mr. Littleton will succeed Delphin M. Delmas, the San Francisco lawyer, who assumed charge of the defense soon after the opening of Thaw's first trial, which resulted in a disagreement of the jury. He is regarded as an able trial lawyer.

—It was Littleton who made the speech in the last National Democratic Convention at St. Louis nominating Alton B. Parker for the Presidency.

Battle of Boone's Ford.

Jamestown Exposition, Va., Aug. 3.—Indian warwhoops, the gleam of tomahawks and the rattle and crack of musketry will soon bring a bit of realism to the pine forest, along the shore of Hampton Roads where nestles the log building and the stockade of the new "Fort Boone," Kentucky's home at Jamestown Per-Centennial Exposition.

Boone's fort, the one erected by the great frontiersman, Daniel Boone, stood on the South bank of the Kentucky river in Madison county, Kentucky, and many of the logs for this representation at Jamestown came from the site of the original fort. In days of Indian outbreaks the settlers flocked to the fort and many times it was attacked but always successfully defended.

On July 14th, 1775, Elizabeth and Frances, daughters of Col. Richard Callaway, and Jimima, daughter of Daniel Boone, were in a canoe on the Clark County side of the river. Lurking Indians captured and carried them away. The Indians were followed over trail leading by where the city of Winchester is now located.

The girls were rescued from the Indians at a point near Blue Licks. The pursuit party was as follows: Boone, Major Smith, Col. Floyd, Bartlett, Searcy, Catlett Jones, John Holder, Samuel Henderson and Flanders Callaway. The last three were young men and lovers of the girls; Henderson of the elder Miss Callaway; Holder of her sister, Frances; Flanders Callaway, of Miss Boone. The story is one of the most thrilling in American history.

It is to commemorate this event that the citizens of that section of the Blue Grass State have arranged for a very unique celebration at the Jamestown Exposition on August 23. This date is known as "Winchester Day" and the program includes an attack on the "fort" by Indians concealed among the pines, and the capture and rescue of certain young ladies impersonating the pioneer damsels. His story will be repeated in realistic form. Real Indians will be in the attacking party and some of Winchester's people, both male and female, will represent Indians. Others will represent the defenders of the Fort and the girls who were captured.

The committee to arrange the program consists of R. B. Perry, H. K. Taylor, B. R. Joutt and Stuart Tracy, of Winchester. Several members of the committee are descendants of Boone's rescuing party of 1775. Mayor John E. Garner will respond to the address of welcome, and in addition some of Kentucky's most talented musicians will participate in the exercises.

The Exposition managers will give all necessary aid to make the day a success. There is now no question but that Winchester Day will be one of the best during the Exposition.

—The Real Reason.

It is believed by students of affairs in the Far East that the real reason for sending the American battleship fleet to the Pacific has nothing to do with Japan, but that trouble is expected when the Dowager Empress of China dies. She is now reported to be in ill health.

—Declines With Thanks.

William S. Taylor has declined R. B. Franklin's offer of immunity from arrest provided he comes to Kentucky to testify in the Powers trial. Taylor said his testimony would be of a negative nature only and of no value to the defense.

—The Man of The Hour.

The man of the hour is Judge K. M. Landis, of the Federal Court of the Northern District of Illinois.

He fined the greatest combination of industrial facilities the world has ever known—$29,240,000—and called their methods more inimical to society than those of violent criminals.

His decision makes law, and in 7,500 words, rapidly, forcefully read in 55 minutes, he brought the cause of honesty in commercialism from degradation into light, and gives independent operators hope of freedom of competition.

He declares that collusion existed between the Standard Oil Company and the Chicago & Alton road, and called a special grand jury to investigate.

He laid down the principle that if a corporation or railroad accepts goods for interstate shipment beyond its own lines it engages in interstate commerce, and is subject to federal regulations.

—Enormous Profits.

The enormous profits of the Standard Oil Company form the basis of a long report by Herbert Knox Smith, Commissioner of Corporations, to President Roosevelt. The report gives the results of an elaborate investigation of prices and profits of the oil industry. Mr. Smith computes that in twenty-four years the Standard Oil Company has made $790,000,000 on an investment of $75,000,000. He charges that the company has resorted to unfair means of competition, and has used its powers to force prices up. He denies that the Standard has in any manner benefited the consumer, and asserts that under free competition the price would be much lower.

—Thaw's New Lawyer.

Martin W. Littleton, former president of the borough of Brooklyn and a lawyer and orator of wide reputation, will be chief counsel for Harry K. Thaw when the wealthy young Pittsburger again faces a jury to answer to the charge of killing Stanford White. Thaw announced the selection of Mr. Littleton Saturday after a conference with his mother and his wife. It is said Mr. Littleton's fee will be $25,000.

As chief counsel for Thaw, Mr. Littleton will succeed Delphin M. Delmas, the San Francisco lawyer, who assumed charge of the defense soon after the opening of Thaw's first trial, which resulted in a disagreement of the jury. He is regarded as an able trial lawyer.

—It was Littleton who made the speech in the last National Democratic Convention at St. Louis nominating Alton B. Parker for the Presidency.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Miles of Frankfort, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss May Keith Miles, to Mr. Alexander Macey Williamson, Professor of Electrical Engineering at State College.

The marriage will be celebrated very quietly on Saturday, August 10th, at the home of the bride-elect, and the couple will go for a trip to Canada.

Miss Miles has been making her home in Lexington for two or three years with the position of assistant to Dr. H. H. Roberts, from which she resigned about a month ago.

Prof. Wilson was graduated from Purdue University. He has been a member of the faculty of State College for several years and has won many friends in Lexington during his residence there. The bride-to-be is well known here, having frequently visited Paris friends.

—Court Day.

A small crowd in town yesterday and no trading worthy of mention. There was only one mule on the market and it was purchased by McClintock & Sons from Clarence Wright.

There were about 1,000 sheep at Murphy's pens. Five hundred sold at from $6 to $6.50 per head, and 375 cattle, 350 of them selling at from $17 to $35 per head.

—The Bay Horse.

An Old Arab Legend That Tells of His Unmatched Speed.

The bay colored horse is said to be the swiftest of all the horses. A story to illustrate this is told of a certain Arab sheik who, having been engaged in a fight with another tribe, was taking his flight with his little son.

They were both mounted on a magnificent white mare which belonged to the sheik and which had always been highly valued on account of the great speed at which it could go. After having ridden some little distance the sheik asked his son to look around and see if they were being followed. The boy replied that there was some one riding after them on a black horse. The sheik seemed satisfied on hearing this report, but presently repeated his question. The boy answered that they were still being pursued, but that this time the horse was white. "Never mind," said the father; "mine is faster."

In a few minutes he asked for a further report, and the reply was the same, with the difference that the horse was a chestnut. The sheik, however, put his question a fourth time, but upon being told by his son that the pursuer was mounted on a bay he cried out, "Then we are lost, for there is no horse which it cannot overtake." His words proved to be true, for in a short time they were caught up with and captured.

—LEATHER BOUND BOOKS.

A Little Vaseline Improves and Preserves the Binding.

An official of the Congressional Library was talking with a friend who recently had purchased a handsome set of leather bound volumes and said: "You had better examine those volumes carefully to see if the leather needs feeding. If it is new stock they will be all right let alone for several years, but if they have been on the shelves for some time the leather will have lost most of its natural oil and become brittle. This applies especially to books kept in private houses, which are as a rule much hotter than the book stacks of a large library. There is nothing more attractive than a fresh, well preserved leather binding on a volume and scarcely anything less so than a dilapidated, cracked one."

"You can add years to the life of a leather binding and a hundred per cent to its appearance by rubbing in a little vaseline with a piece of raw cotton—not too much, just as much as the leather will thoroughly absorb. Where the binding bends is where it is most likely to crack. The leather will not be greasy, as the vaseline will be absorbed. One treatment every year or two is sufficient unless the books are unduly exposed to heat."—Washington Star.

—Within Her Rights.

A very black woman in a silver gray automobile coat was seen a few mornings ago hauling an unwilling and disreputable looking yellow dog by a leather thong.

A friendly disposed policeman asked casually: "Why don't you turn the dog loose? He don't look able to run off, and nobody'll want to steal him?" "Ain't I a 'oman?" was the tart query.

There was no disputing the fact. "Ain't dis heah a dog?" Patent fact.

"Ain't dis heah New York?" Obviously true.

"Well, ain't I got a good right to walk on dese heah streets and put on all the style I choose?" No disputing a self evident proposition.—New York Times.

—Impartial.

An English clergyman, recently settled in a small town in Perthshire, met a farmer's boy while visiting the members of his congregation. In the course of conversation the boy said his parents had an aunt staying with them. The parson, not having much acquaintance with the Scottish language and not quite comprehending what the boy said, asked:

"Then, do I understand that your aunt is on your father's side or on your mother's?"

To which the young agriculturist replied: "Weel, whiles the aye an whiles the ither, excep' when feyther leathers them bairn."—Dundee Advertiser.
